

Global Journal of Media Studies

CONTENTS

Volume 13, Number 1, February 2026

FOREWORD

Breaking Through Amidst Change: Research Priorities and Directions for Journalism and Communication Studies During the 15th Five-Year Plan Period Zhengrong Hu/1

THEORIES AND RESEARCH: FRONTIERS OF JOURNALISM AND COMMUNICATION

Knowledge Production and Future Approaches in Chinese Journalism and Communication Studies Taofu Zhang, Zukang Li/4

Examining Intelligent Communication: Exploring the Evolution of AI Infrastructuralization and Its National Capability Discourse Changfeng Chen, Yuqing Yuan/17

Tianxiadatong: Digital-Intelligence Reconstruction and Sovereignty Safeguarding in the Global Communication of Chinese Culture Yong Xiang, Yifei He/37

Frontier Practices of Journalism in China and the West in 2025: A Study Based on the AGIL Functional Analysis Framework from a Systemic Transformation Perspective Zhanwen Mao, Yang Chen/51

Upholding Constants and Perceiving Changes: Focused Issues and Research Review of Chinese Journalism Theory Study in 2025 Lingbo Tu, Hang Li, Jingyi Yang/73

INTELLIGENT COMMUNICATION

Theoretical Grammar and Machine Aesthetics: The Core Challenges of Generative Artificial Intelligence in Film and Television Art Studies Junjian Liang, Yunfan Li/92

Inconsistent “Openness”: The Social Production of AI Open-Source Discourse and the “Audit Theater” of Trustworthy Knowledge Shishi Fang, Yixin Wang/108

Selective Persuasion: Structural Stance Bias of Generative AI in Controversial Issues Zhanghao Li, Na Ta/128

Humans as Observers: On the Reflexivity of Algorithm Auditing Kairong Shu, Xinyi Zhang/151

GLOBAL VIEW

News, Journalism, and Journalism Studies in Digital Space—An Interview with ICA Fellow Professor Edson Tandoc Yangkun Huang, Edson Tandoc/171